3. The DD/I and his offices will provide a continuing flow of finished intelligence from Washington in support of each intelligence staff.

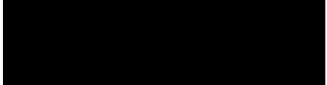

4. Information copies of communications to and from the Intelligence Staffs will be furnished to DD/P staffs and divisions concerned. Coordination of communications with ^{appropriate} these DD/P staffs and divisions prior to transmittal will be effected as ^{necessary} appropriate.

5. Intelligence Staffs abroad must be capable of operating on an all-sources basis and of communicating with the DD/I in Washington through teletype, cable, and pouch channels on intelligence topics of interest to the several offices under the DD/I and to the Senior Representatives. To ensure the proper control and support of the Intelligence Staffs, it is essential that the planning, direction, administrative coordination, and communications concerning such staffs be centralized under one executive agent acting for the DD/I in Washington. It is also necessary that members of the DD/I offices assigned to the Senior Representative whether for temporary or for permanent duty be attached to the Senior Representative's Intelligence Staff and report to the Chief of that staff, who will in all cases act as the senior DD/I official both in relation to the Senior Representative and in relation to the intelligence offices of CIA in Washington.

To ensure the proper control and support of the Intelligence Staffs, it would be desirable to have planning and communications coordinated by a centralized executive agent acting for the DD/I in Washington. Administrative direction would still reside in the AD of the office to which a component of the Intelligence Staff reports, as a primary responsibility.

dominant means ruling or controlling - I suggest "primary interest" is more nearly correct

6. The Office of Current Intelligence has the dominant interest in DD/I intelligence activities abroad by virtue of its current intelligence and briefing mission. In addition, OOI is responsible for the security of all communications involving Special Intelligence. Accordingly, I hereby designate the Assistant Director, Current Intelligence, as the executive agent of the DD/I for all matters pertaining to ^{administrative support,} ~~the establishment,~~ ^{planning} ~~construction for~~ maintenance and ~~operation~~ of intelligence staffs abroad. All offices under the DD/I, except the Office of Operations, will make such arrangements with the AD/CI as are necessary to conform to this memorandum.
